What is Safe Exchange and Supervised Visitation?

New Mexico's Safe Exchange and Supervised Visitation program provides children and parents with a safe environment for supervised visits and exchanges, allowing a child to continue his or her relationship with the noncustodial parent without being placed in the middle of parental conflicts. Supervision acts initially as intervention, and ultimately as prevention with regard to disputes between parents, serving to diminish the child's exposure to more harmful, potentially life-threatening situations. Emphasis is placed on the safety and well being of the child.

Who operates the program?

State law establishes a framework for the design of the program, with District Courts relying on local contractors to deliver these much needed services.

The Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC) oversees the contracting process between the District Courts and service providers. In Fiscal Year 2014, thirteen local contractors are delivering services in twenty-one of the State's thirty-three counties.

Funding?

For FY 2013, the New Mexico Legislature appropriated $876,361 to the AOC, which contracted with providers, trainers and others for SESV services.

Research has found that participating in Safe Exchange and Supervised Visitation programs can help children better cope with the trauma experienced when they observe violence.

Results in Fiscal Year 2013?

- Nearly 1,000 children maintained relationships with their parents
- 13,546 visits and exchange services were provided to 2,241 clients
- On average, 1,024 services were provided each month (524 visits and 500 exchanges)*
- Service hours averaged 1,129 per month

* It should be noted that for many months, no services were provided in the First District as the contract was being procured.
